Topic: Virtual Gear Inspection with Will Carpenter and Piper Museum Update with John Bryerson

First Pete Morse describes the upcoming triple treat: a ComancheZOOM on Comanche performance hosted by George Miriam on June 17 - a walk through the POH and be worth FAA WINGS credit for those who sign up – followed by the weekend fly-in at Newport NH with landing and takeoff challenges as part of a WINGS credit seminar on “How well does you aircraft really perform?” A Zoom for credit, a fun fly-in with burgers and hot dogs on the grill, and more WINGS credit for a seminar

Then Will Carpenter describes his experience with Matt Kurke performing a virtual inspection of the rebuilt landing gear (and other areas) of his Comanche. The plane was in a North Carolina non-Comanche shop, Will was in his office at his airbase, and Matt was at Comanche Gear in Florida. You have to see this team in action to appreciate the value of this Zoom approach.

Finally John Bryerson, retiring head of the Lock Haven Piper Museum, former engineer on the Comanche assembly line, and extremely knowledgeable on Piper history, brought everyone up to date on the Museum’s operation and the Piper Sentimental Journey coming up June 22 through 26. The tidbits he brought out on the closing of the Lock Haven plant and the opening of the Museum are quite interesting.
